

Claire Voorhees is a Director and buy-side analyst for Wells Fargo's Investment Portfolio, where she provides investment recommendations, credit, and relative value analysis for the bank's municipal bond portfolio. She moved to San Francisco to join the Credit Investment Portfolio as a senior analyst in 2016 and primarily covers general obligation credits, working closely with portfolio managers and traders. The Bond Buyer recognized her as a Rising Star in 2017.

Previously, Ms. Voorhees was a Vice President and member of the investment team at Fundamental Credit Opportunities, a New York based hedge fund co-founded by Hector Negroni focused on the municipal market. She joined in the first year of FCO's launch and for two and a half years worked as the fund's sole investment analyst with primary responsibility for credit research, analysis, and recommendations across all municipal sectors, as well as idiosyncratic investments. She performed in depth credit work on the Puerto Rico debt complex and was part of the GO ad hoc group of creditors during PR's restructuring process. Institutional investors voted her as SMITH's Municipal Rising All Star in 2015.

Prior to joining FCO, Ms. Voorhees worked in Municipal Credit Research at BofA Merrill Lynch, providing investment recommendations and publishing research for institutional and high net worth clients, as well as sales and trading. She developed expertise across a broad spectrum of sectors and covered Puerto Rico. In addition to high yield credit analysis, she has specialized in public power for which she was recognized twice in SMITH's Municipal All Star Awards.

Ms. Voorhees worked previously in the financial institutions investment banking group at UBS. Prior to business school, she worked in NYC and Singapore at a hedge fund, York Capital Management. She is an active member of NFMA. Ms. Voorhees received her M.B.A. from the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth, where she received a merit based scholarship, and her B.A. with high honors and distinction from the University of Virginia. She grew up in Chevy Chase, MD. She is a lover of wine and traveling, and in her free time, she instructs pilates.
